The United States twenty-dollar bill is a denomination of US currency. The $20 bill currently features U.S. President Andrew Jackson's portrait on the front and the White House on the back. According to the Bureau of Engraving, the average circulation life of the $20 bill is 25 months before it is replaced due to wear. Approximately 11% of all notes printed in 2009 were $20 bills. All $20 bills issued today are Federal Reserve Notes. Twenty dollar bills are delivered by Federal Reserve Bands in violet straps.

Jackson first appeared on the $20 bill in 1928. It is unknown why the bill switched to him from Grover Cleveland.

Jackson ironically opposed both the National Bank and paper money. The goal of his administration was to destroy the National Bank. In his farewell address, he warned the nation about paper money.

Who was Andrew Jackson and why is he on our $20 bill?

Andrew Jackson's Birth State - map of South Carolina

On March 15, 1767, Andrew Jackson was born to Presbyterian Scotch-Irish parents Andrew and Elizabeth Hutchinson Jackson, just two years after they came here from Ireland.

Jackson received his education in the local "old-field" school. At 14, he worked for a time in a saddle-maker's shop. He later taught school and studied law in Salisbury, North Carolina. At 20, he was admitted to the bar, and moved to Jonesborough, North Carolina. Without much of an education, he still became a country lawyer on the frontier. At 29, Jackson was a delegate to the Tennessee constitutional convention. He also served as a US Senator, a US Representative, and a judge of the Tennessee Supreme Court.

Jackson married Rachel Donelson Robards in 1791 and again in 1794. Although they had no children of their own, he had adopted two sons, Andrew Jackson Jr and Lyncoya. The Jackson's were guardians for eight children: John Samuel Donelson, Daniel Smith Donelson, Andrew Jackson Donelson, Andrew Jackson Hutchings, Caroline Butler, Eliza Butler, Edward Butler and Anthony Butler.

Jackson's service in the War of 1812 against the United Kingdom and victory in the Battle of New Orleans made him a national hero. He received the Thanks of Congress and a gold medal by resolution of February 27, 1815.

For Jackson's involvement in receiving Florida and setting a boundary between the US and Spain during the First Seminole War, Jackson was named military governor. He served from March to December of 1821.

During the 1828 election, Jackson's opponents called him a "Jackass" and he liked it. He used the symbol and it became the symbol for the Democratic Party when cartoonist Thomas Nast made it popular.

Jackson destroyed the Second Bank of the United States when he vetoed its 1832 charter and withdrew US Funds in 1833. He reinvested in other banks and miscellaneous projects. Rapid inflation and state debt followed so he required anyone buying government lands to pay in gold or silver coin. Banks collapsed when they didn't have enough to exchange for their notes. This caused the Panic of 1837, which caused a national economic depression.

The 25 star U.S. flag to the left was adopted in 1836 and flown during Andrew Jackson's Presidency - The 26 star flag to the right was adopted in 1837.
